

BMJ is committed to ensuring the independence and integrity of our content, products, and services. We strive, therefore, to be transparent about any interests that our users, customers, and partners might want to know about.

In order to maintain its independence, DTB has a strict policy on competing interests. We need to know if authors have any financial or advisory relationship with the pharmaceutical industry or related healthcare products industry (eg, medical devices or diagnostics). This includes paid or unpaid roles and involvement with industry funded clinical trials. Declarations must cover the last three calendar years.

All authors who write articles that could influence therapeutic choices (eg, drug and treatment reviews or guidelines) must be free from conflict of interest as defined above.

Please disclose any competing interests as outlined by the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors disclosure form (below).

Author disclosure statements are published as supplementary files with articles.
